Focus on '64

This year the doors of Elston Senior High opened to us 2050 strong, an increase of more than 200 over last year's enrollment. Administrators, faced with scheduling classes for everyone, suddenly realized that there were too few rooms in the building and too few hours in the day; study hall spilled over into the Christian Church, and many classrooms were occupied for eight hours without respite. To us the population explosion meant that lockers were more packed and the south stairs even less passable. But in later years we will not remember the congestion and inconvenience; rather, we will focus our attention on those typical but meaningful moments of our high school years: facing new schedules, new teachers, new challenges on the first day of school in fall; hearing the crackle of a LaPorte bonfire on a crisp football night; lingering in the halls to discuss a test; fighting for a corner of the rest room mirror; cheering, laughing, crying at basketball tournaments; struggling with a chemistry experiment; paying library fines; working on Junior Concessions and then the Prom; cramming for finals; eagerly scanning the new ELSTONIANS; and finally, graduating. But we do not ever really leave, for our minds return often to focus on our year, 1964.

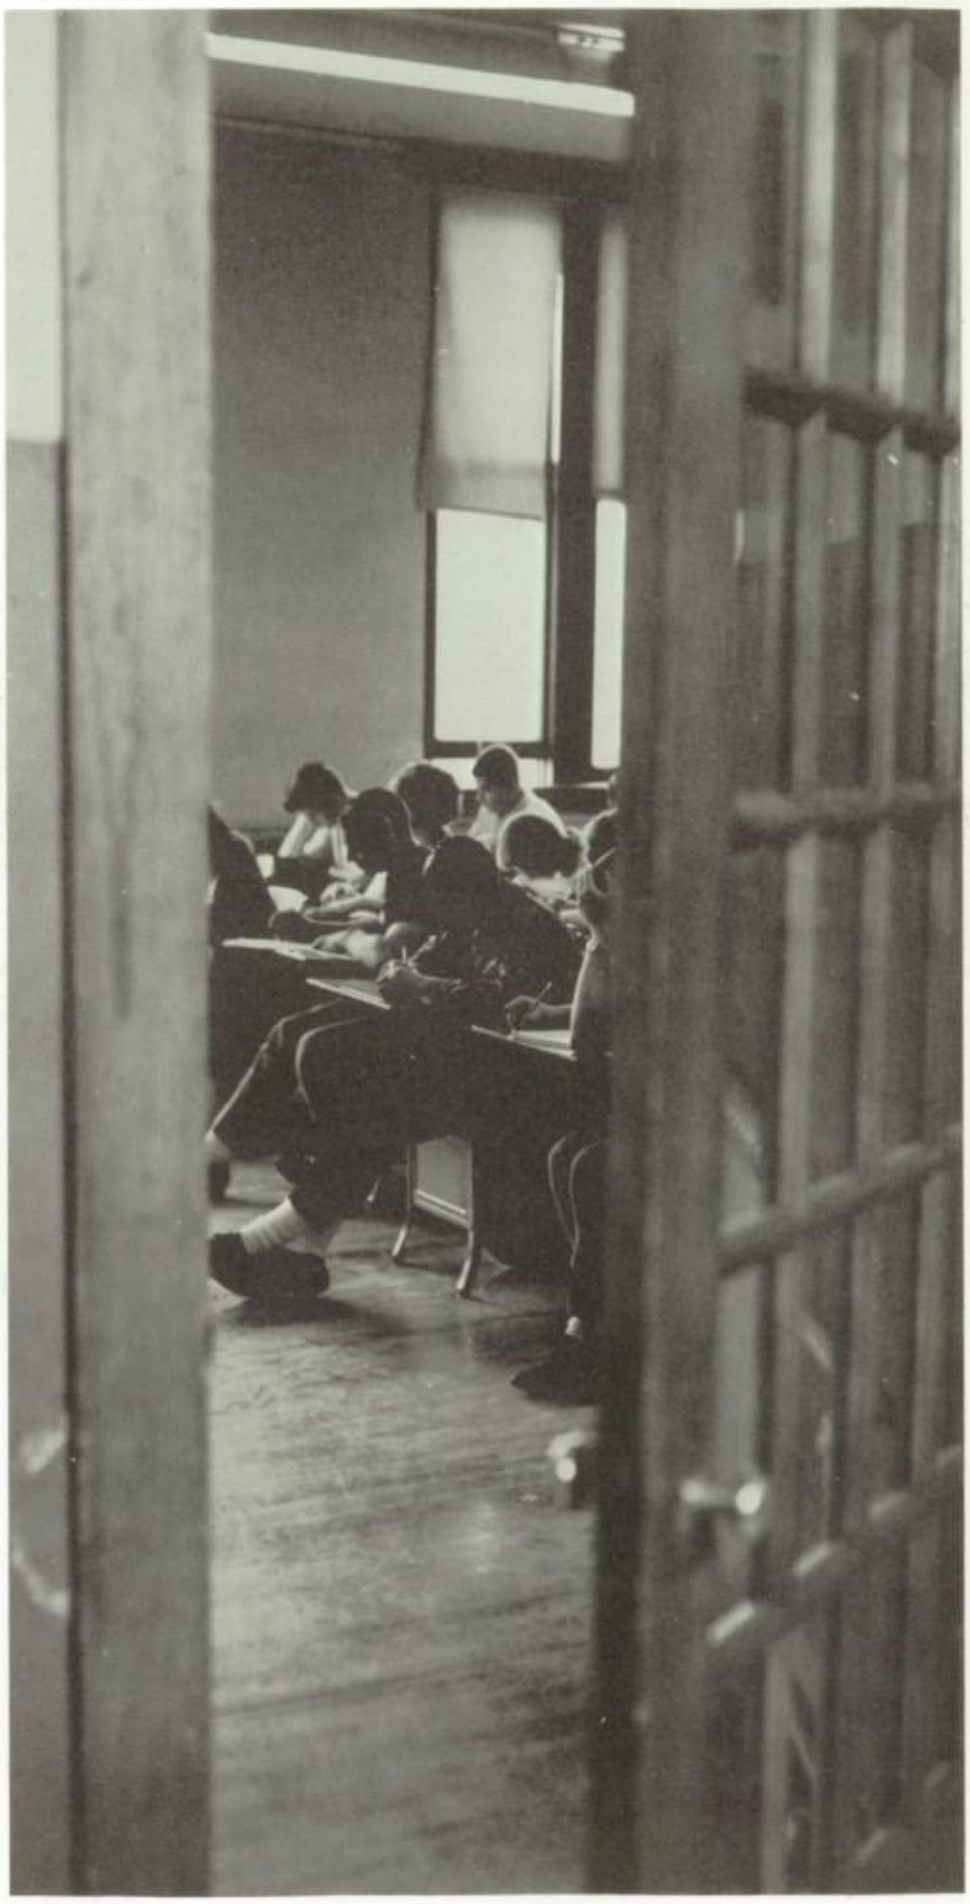
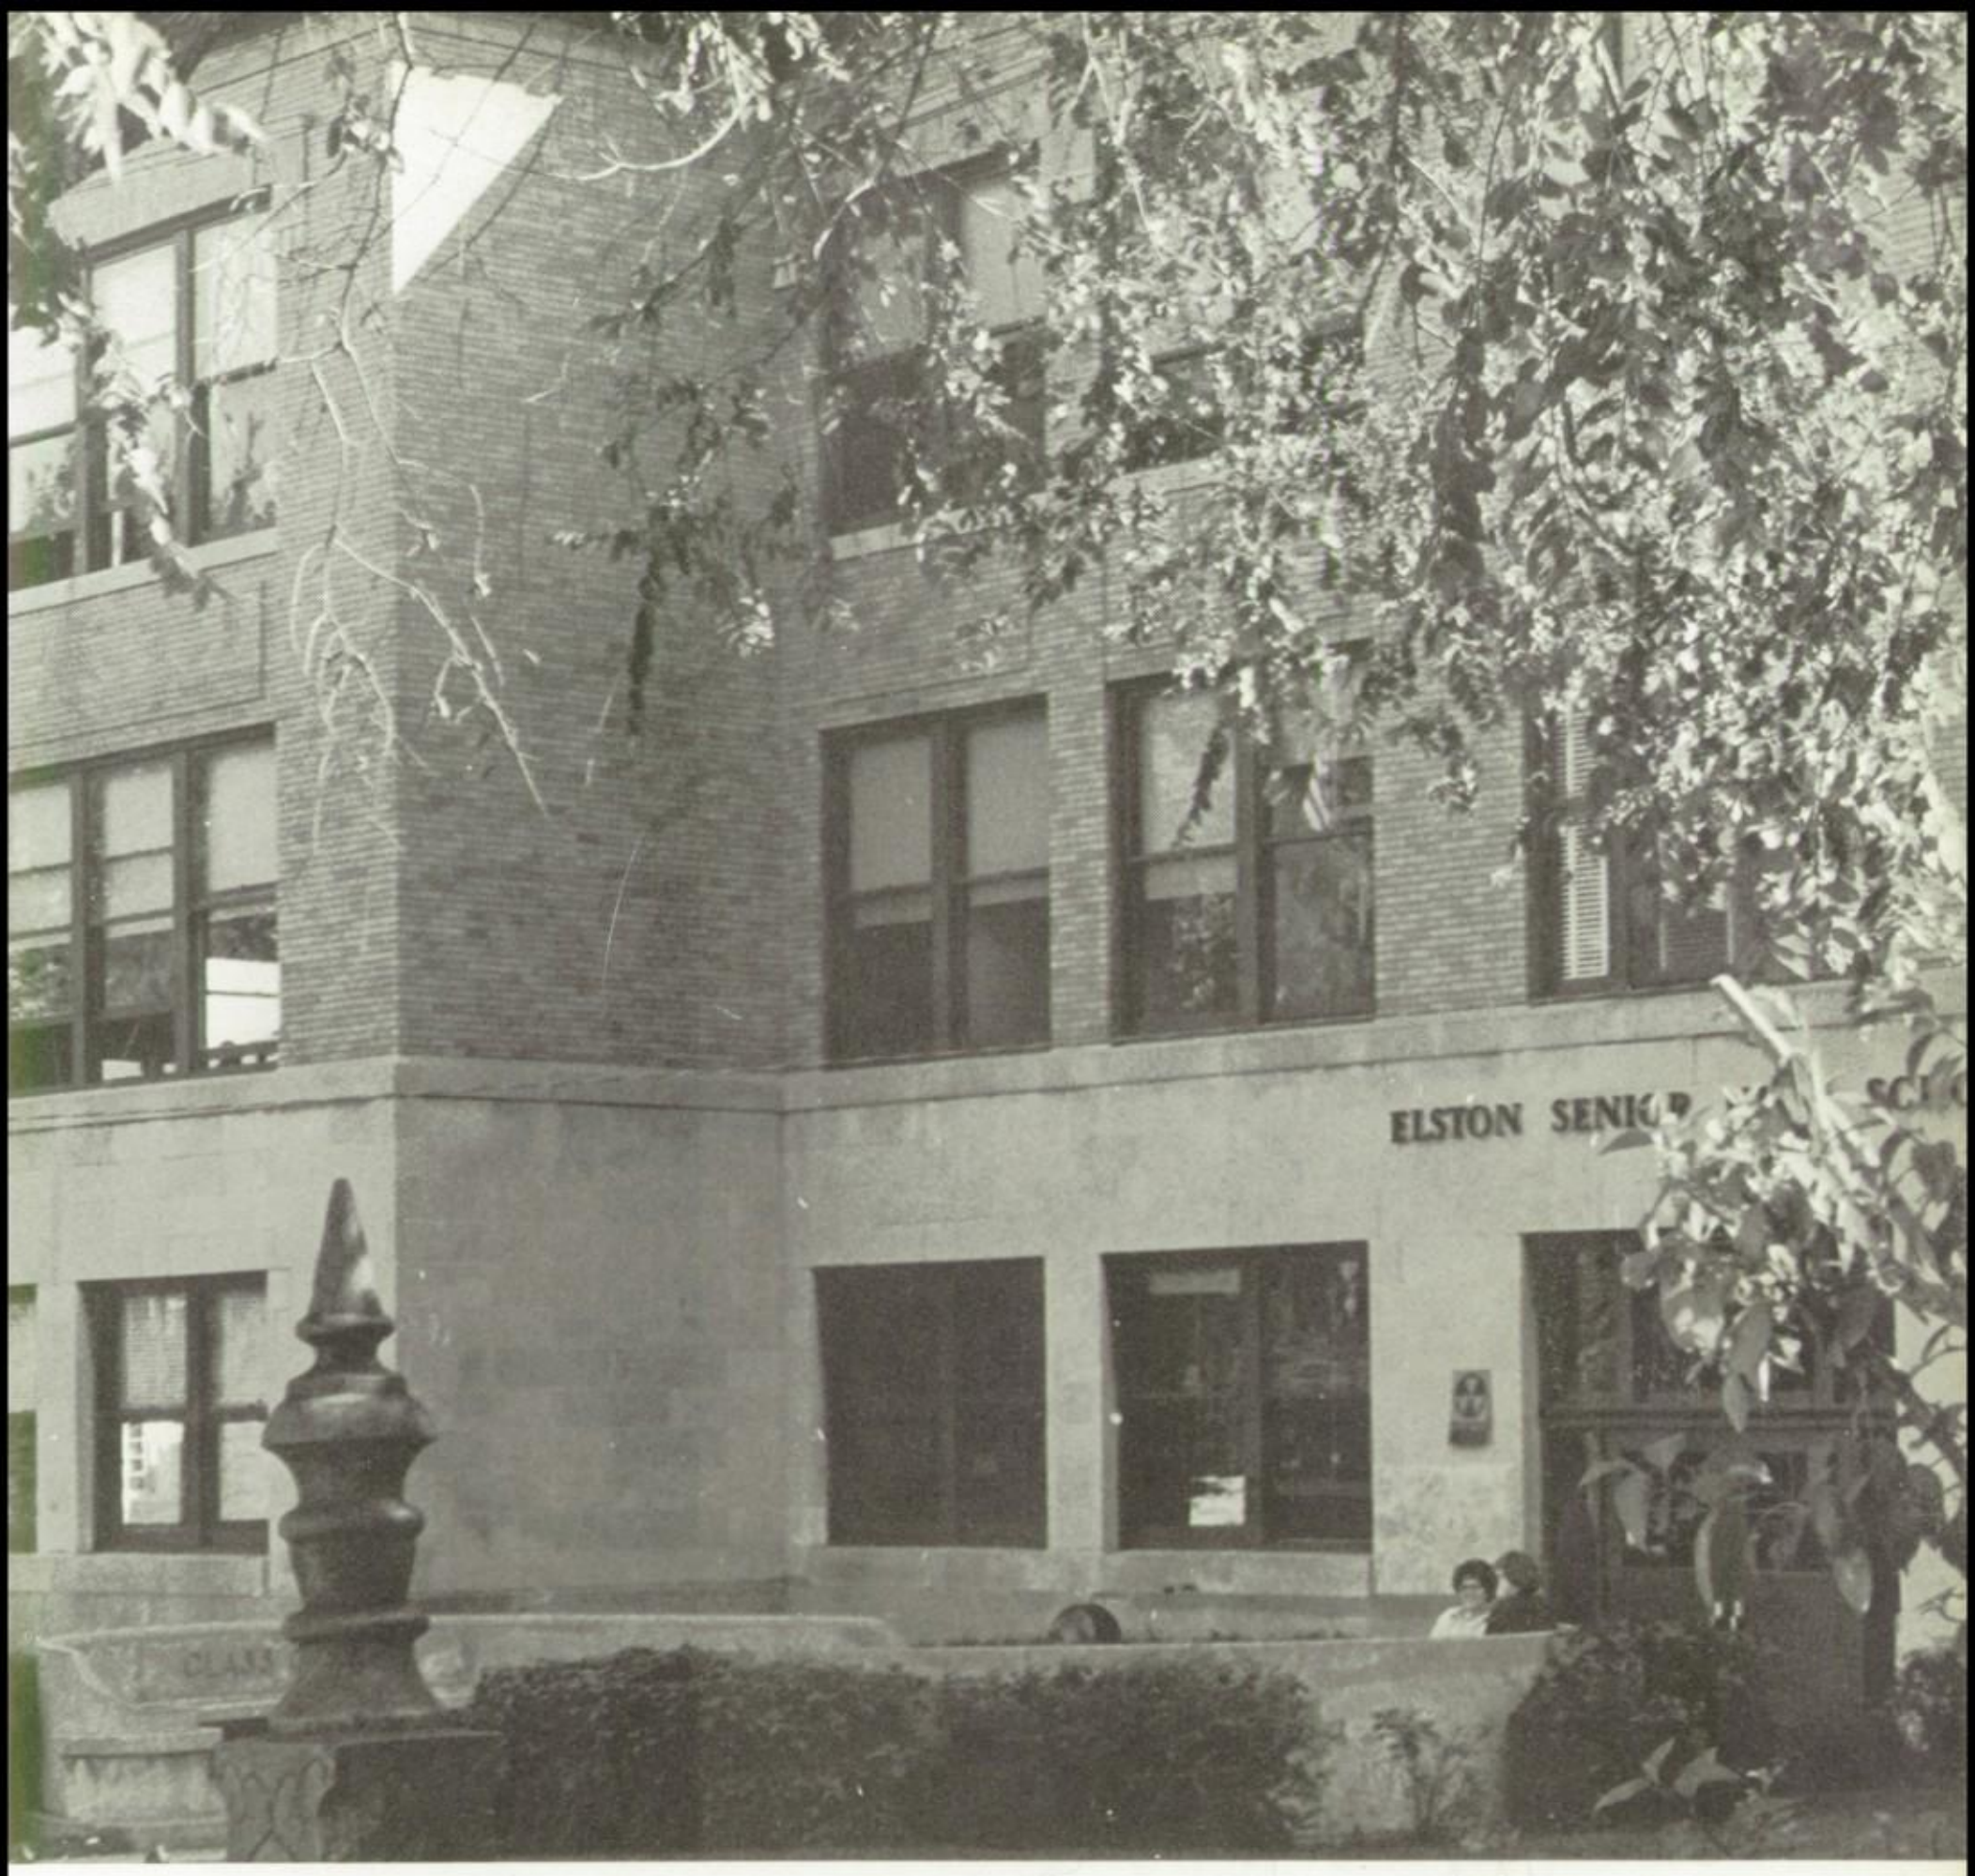
Our school





The main entrance to Elston is a familiar friend to its students. For three years seniors have passed the iron fence worrying about the first class test, wondering if the hall patrol would let them stand inside—out of the blizzardy weather, or puzzling over the latest chemistry experiment. Busy corners are a common sight as buses arrive from all over town and the surrounding area, dispatching their cargo for another school day.

Familiar, too, are the groups waiting for the bell, gossiping with friends around the concrete benches, or trying to catch up on homework at the last minute.

Those walking Elston's halls glance through doors left ajar. Inside, industrious students hurriedly scribble notes, listen to lectures, ponder over tests, or catch up on the sleep they didn't get the night before.

Admiring the program at the prom are Dennis Rhoads and Diane Waldrep.

Our year

What will we remember when we look back on this year? Perhaps it will be that cold, windy night when Peg Schwartzenberg was crowned homecoming queen; or the day the juniors received their class rings; or Christmas time, highlighted by the Thespian musical "Mr. Scrooge"; or the junior-senior prom. But no matter who or where we are, we will remember one thing above all else—the assassination of our President, John Fitzgerald Kennedy.

Helen Shock, Bryan Ton, Kim Freier, Lissa Anderson, Carl Bauer, and Kris Cook applaud Ron Stalbaum as he sings "The Fastest Polka in the World" from Mr. Scrooge.

Homecoming queen Peg Schwartzenberg and her escort, John Curtis, join the team to root for the Red Devils.

Why? Why?

by Bill Kelly

The swift bullet has made its hole.
God, have mercy on his soul.
We'll miss him . . . yes, pray for him . . . .aye,
But God in Heaven, Why? Why?

He was our leader—young, rapt,
Mortally wounded in his own blood he sat,
Stolen from home, country. Our cry
Is God in Heaven, Why? Why?

Will man ne'er cease
His search for peace
By means of guns, making men die?
But God in Heaven, Why? Why?

IN MEMORIAM

WE LEAVE BEHIND IS NOT TO DIE"

November 22, 1963

Most students, unaccustomed to hearing the new intercom, glanced about in puzzlement when an urgent voice broke into Elston's classrooms midday on that Friday in November. Within moments all sat transfixed, listening incredulously to the report of the shooting of President Kennedy in Dallas. Dismissal bell rang, but there was little movement until the announcer had finished. Then students moved slowly, quietly to their next classes. Many of those returning from lunch were told the news by friends and thought it a morbid joke. However, confirmation came, and then official word of the President's death. Everywhere reactions were seen: girls sobbed openly; heads were bowed in prayer; the unpoetic found release in poetry; the Student Council met to consider appropriate measures; the flag was lowered to half mast. A few things went on with near-normalcy—book reports were given, an ELSTONIAN deadline was met, and that night a basketball game was played. But these diversions offered, at best, only temporary relief; the knowledge and burden of the assassination of our President weighed heavily upon everyone. From incredulity and dismay, through fears and grief, to renewed purpose and strength—this was the intense pattern of the tragedy.

The two blocks to the Christian Church became a daily walk in all kinds of weather.

The rush to class was a common sight in Elston's halls.

Daily routines weave schoolday pattern

Time is of essence in Elston's busy halls. We hurry continually—to school, to class, in, out, up, down. Crowds of students swarm through the halls and onto the steps. Lockers are never neat—inhabitated by two with hardly room for one. With too many books and not enough hours, we search for time for homework and clubs, tests and experiments. Now we find ourselves out in the weather as streets turn into halls—our study hall in the First Christian Church.

England—scene of Junior and Senior plays

Randy Robinson tries to convince Judy Rose that he is not the murderer.

A tourist lodge outside London was the setting for "The Mouse Trap," this year's Junior play. Mystery and suspense surrounded the players as a disguised policeman became a boarder, and a disguised murderer became a policeman. Holding leading parts were Kris Cook, Al Murray, Bob Bratkovic, Dick Swinehart, Randy Robinson, Judy Rose, Ellen Smith, John Vanderplough, and Jan Weed.

Another trip to England found the seniors at the country estate of the Bennets, the scene of "Pride and Prejudice." Mrs. Bennet devoted all of her time to finding husbands for her five daughters —to the amusement of her husband. Although often embarrassed by their mother's lack of tact and polish, three of the daughters were successfully matched. The cast included Fred Stockwell, Ruth Pahl, Kitty Mross, Todd Loveland, Pam Brown, Merlyn Bartlett, Linda Howard, Carl Bauer, RoAnne Stuart, Sandy Bolka, Beryle Burgwald, Peg Schwartzenberg, Sue Cross, Georgene Couch, Bonnie Pearson, and Aleta Lemmon.

"The Music Man" comes to Michigan City

A marching band, laughing children, a charming con-man, and the transformation of an aloof librarian were the elements of "The Music Man." Performers, stage crew, and committees labored for weeks to bring River City, Iowa, to the Junior High stage. They were rewarded by enthusiastic applause at four performances of the Meredith Willson musical.

Professor Harold Hill was played by Carl Bauer; Marion Paroo, Helen Shock; Mrs. Paroo, Linda Howard; Mayor Shinn, Al Schroeder; Mrs. Shinn, Ellen Smith; Marcellus, David Ross; and Winthrop Paroo, Jeff Samelson.

Professor Hill leads the quartet—Tom Cowan, Dennis Nickell, Chuck West, and Ron Stalbaum—in singing "Lida Rose."

Actors gain experience in Thespians

The Thespian Society is a national organization of high school dramatists. Theatrically inclined students take part in school productions and work backstage to gain the necessary ten points for admission. After becoming a Thespian, a member attends make-up workshops, sees plays in Chicago, and learns more about the theater. The main event of his year is the Thespian Christmas play which is presented annually to the entire school.

Corn? No, Hams and Lambs

Is there a little of the ham in everyone? The students and teachers of Elston High again answered a resounding "yes" at the annual Hams and Lambs Talent Show, sponsored by the National Honor Society. Mr. Lootens, acting as emcee, injected witty comments and impersonations throughout the program, which featured an all teacher cheerleading squad and a monologue by the Dick Gregory of Michigan City, Vernon Payne.

"Let Me Entertain You," says Jean Ann Jaques.

Music Department combines learning with entertaining

Madrigals have a last minute rehearsal before a program.

The vocal department, led by Mr. Louis Timberlake, was made up of five choruses and a performing group, Madrigals. The choruses learned the basics of choral singing and gained poise for concerts. Every spring the combined choruses of four schools come together under a guest conductor and present a concert. Michigan City was the host last year, and LaPorte was this year.

Under the direction of Mr. Thomas Hendricks, the band, without sufficient uniforms, led the cheers at the football games. There were two performing groups—one, the pep band, added life and spirit to our pep sessions and basketball games; the other, the dance band, provided music at the school dances.

Together these two departments worked on the combined assemblies given in both spring and fall, the school musical, "The Music Man," and a program for the opening of Michigan Boulevard.

Pat Gondek and Beverly Bartels receive their scholarship pins from Mr. Lonzo.

Scholarship pins recognize achievement

Although the benefits of scholastic effort usually cannot be measured, knowledge and satisfaction reward the good student. This year for the first time at Elston more tangible proof of achievement was offered. Scholarship pins were awarded to students who had maintained high grade averages—bronze pins for two consecutive semesters of honor work; silver pins for four consecutive semesters. Mr. Lonzo supervised the program with eighty students receiving pins. Seniors received gold pins for six semesters at graduation.

Service clubs exist for a purpose

Elston's service clubs are so necessary, yet so often taken for granted. Pencils, protractors, or paper—the Student Store supplies faculty and student needs daily. Office messengers help with filing, delivering call-out slips, running errands, answering phone calls. Each hour a new crew assists the office secretaries and counselors. At lunch hours and after school, hungry students crowd around the cart or the pit clamoring for candy and potato chips while Canteen members rush to meet their demands. Dahlites are more than an accessory to the library; they are a vital part of its efficient operation. Shelving books, issuing them to students, and taking attendance are a few Dahlite duties. Hall Patrol members maintain order in the halls before and after school and during lunch hours. When classes are in session, Hall Monitors make sure that no one is noisy in the halls or there without a hall pass.

On the inside these clubs provide fun, freedom, satisfaction, and special privileges. On the outside they provide services, conveniences, and discipline.

Clubs broaden interests

The foundation of clubs at Elston is interest. Four language clubs offer the opportunity to learn more about the customs and traditions behind the mechanics of language study. Presenting programs and celebrating holidays as people do in foreign countries ties the student closer to the language. Math Club also continues an interest born in the classroom. Following an initiation in the fall, members attend monthly meetings. They hear programs on number theory and the role of mathematics in today's world. The atmosphere of the darkroom soon becomes familiar to Camera Club members. Practice in developing, printing, and enlarging the pictures they have taken increases their skill.

Students contribute money and effort to charities

Ringing doorbells, making toys, donating time, money, and old clothes—these were the ways Elston students worked for charity. The National Honor Society sponsored the clothing drive. For two weeks homerooms accumulated old clothes which were sent to depressed areas of the United States. Honor Society was also in charge of raising money for Channel 11, Chicago's educational television station. Fashionettes utilized their sewing talents by making dolls to send to the Michigan City Therapy Center. The Elston Squeeze was the school's all-out effort for charity. Students dug deep and contributed over one thousand dollars to be divided among seven charities. Homeroom competition was generated by a trophy awarded to the sponsor group giving the most money.

The competition was based on poise, talent, and personality. Jeanne Periolet of St. Mary's won the Jr. Miss title, and two Elston girls, Peggy Schwartzenberg and Cris Sadenwater, placed in the finals. Pam Brown and Helen Shock tied for the Miss Congeniality award, presented by the Jayshees.

Cadet Teaching and T&I provide training and experiences

Cadet teachers spend two or three hours a day for one semester in community schools, gaining experience in the various fields of teaching. By taking an active part in the daily school routine and assisting veteran teachers, the boys and girls of the cadet teaching program often decide whether teaching will be their chosen field.

Elston's Trade and Industry Program has received the ready support of community business men. T & I participants coordinate classroom study with fully paid working hours. This practical experience often leads T & I students into successful vocations after graduation.

Back from college campuses are Linda Howard, Barbara Bankoff, and Kim Freier.

Foreign countries and college campuses beckoned to Elston students last summer. Kirk Rogers spent nine weeks in Denmark as an American Field Service exchange student. Merlyn Bartlett lived with a family in Mexico, and later Arturo Cervantes, with whom he stayed, visited him in Michigan City. Mary Mathias went to Girls' State, and Ken Krueger, Carl Bauer, and Jeff Weidner were Boys' State representatives. They spent one week at Indiana University learning and practicing state government. Scholarships were won by Linda Howard for study in dramatics at Northwestern University, Barbara Bankoff for a course in Economics at Goucher College, and Kim Freier for a physical therapy training course at Purdue University. Members of the CRIMSON COMET and ELSTONIAN staffs received training in two week journalism institutes at Indiana University. Knowledge and experience were gained along with many new and interesting friends.

Peg is our queen

Homecoming day was filled with excitement and nervous anticipation for the twenty-nine queen candidates. The five finalists, all blondes, had already been chosen; car decorations were in various stages of completion. As parade time drew near, the finishing touches were put on cars and candidates alike. The bare-shouldered girls shivered in biting winds as the procession wound slowly down Franklin Street from the Courthouse to Ames Field. During the first half of the game, candidates and their escorts warmed-up beneath the stands; a few of them, staunch fans, watched the action on the field. At last the half-time ceremonies began. Facial expressions revealed the story of the five finalists as last year's queen, Theresa Gryvna, announced the name of the 1963 Homecoming Queen—Peggy Schwartzenberg.

"Will it ever get done?" asks RoAnne Stuart, Math Club candidate.

Granada parachutes to Elston

Miles and miles of rose covered vines—wire and clothes pins—rolls of paper and gallons of paint—hours of worry and work all went into the Junior Prom.

Indelible impressions linger for those who labored. Some remember green fingers and sore hands from twisting crepe paper into vines and roses, or aching knees from painting rocks on pink paper, or acrophobia from attaching parachutes with clothes pins, or the tedious job of gathering old pop bottles for centerpieces. Homely elements, ordinary stuff, but planning and ingenuity transformed them into the perfect setting for an evening party in Granada—Soiree dans Granada.

There is healing in a garden
When one longs for peace and pardon.
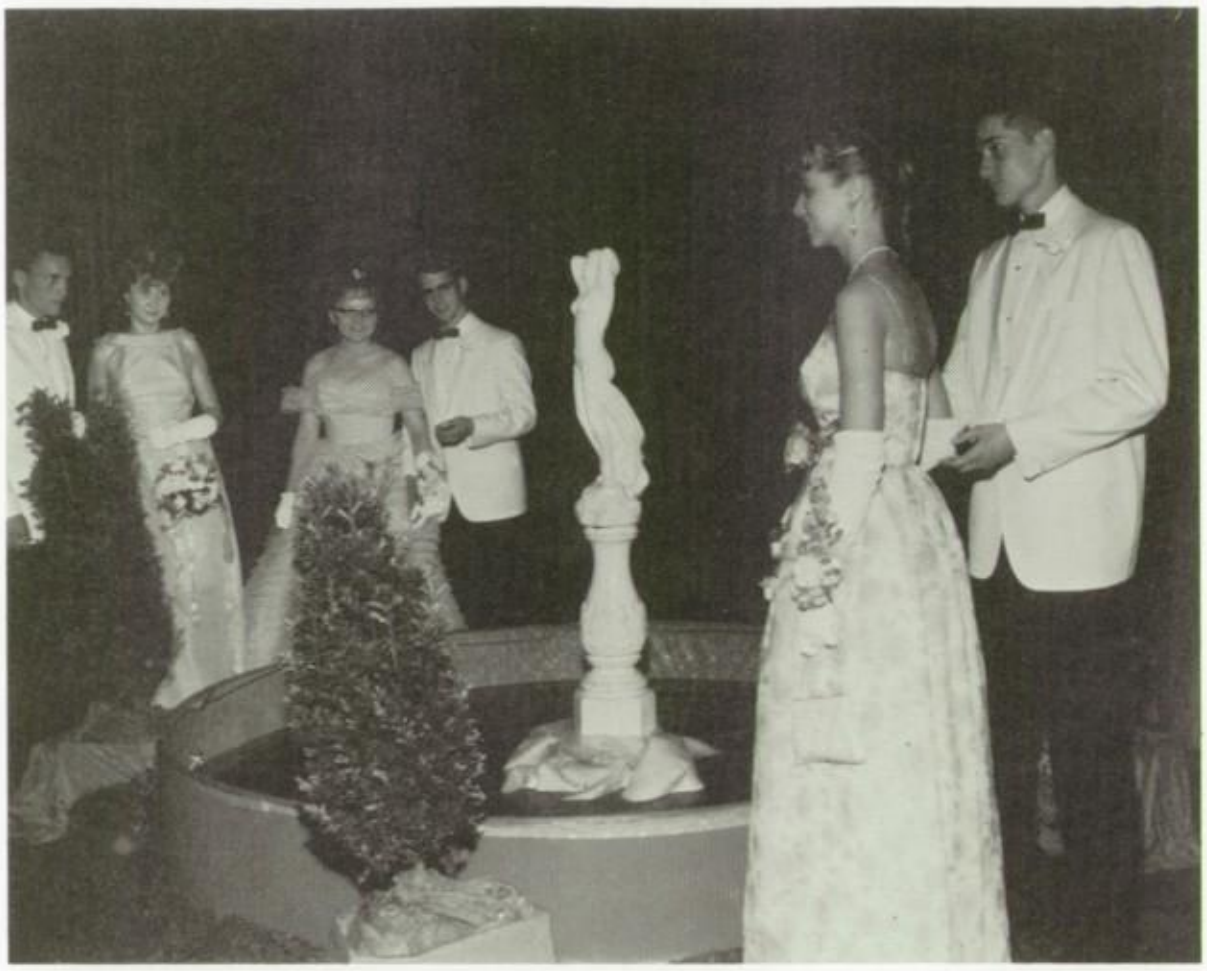
Once past the gate
No need to wait,
For God is in the garden.

Perhaps unnoticed in the excitement of Prom night, these words, engraved on the wooden gate, graced the entrance. Gaily dressed seniors and senoritas distributed fan-shaped programs. Soft blue lighting cast a romantic aura on the fountain, a wishing pond and gathering place for the couples. The traditional crepe paper ceiling gave way to a billowing canopy of parachutes; the simple decor of tall arches and delicate roses completed the elegant atmosphere of a Spanish garden.



Enjoying the beauty and romance of the fountain are Robby Robinson and Lynn Mettlen, Sandy Bolka and Fred Stockwell, and Linda Schendel and Tom Cowan.

New concepts alter teaching of math and science

With the emphasis on "how" and "why" Elston science students spent a large part of their class time in the laboratories. Physics classes, not limited to the lab, invaded Gill Field to test the range finders students had assembled.

Chemistry classes used the new Bradbury textbook. The chemical bond approach as developed by Lawrence Strong was presented. As a part of the Indiana Academy of Science Visiting Scientists Program, Mr. Strong presented a program on "Why Do Substances React?" and a liquid oxygen demonstration to chemistry students in February.

The Mathematics Department has taken part in an experiment testing the merit of new types of math. The Ball State Teacher's Plan has been used for three years in geometry and for one year in advanced algebra. This year Algebra III and IV both were offered to juniors. Economics added to social studies curriculum

For the first time in many years a course in economics was offered to senior students. The class studied production, consumption, the monetary system and the stock market. A term paper related to economics was an important requirement of the course. Advanced social studies students also were required to write term papers. In addition, they did research on and discussed heredity, environment, culture, labor relations, and communism. American problems—also taken by seniors—used a textbook to study such current national problems as education, marriage, and crime.

The November municipal elections afforded government students an excellent opportunity to participate in a political campaign and learn firsthand about city government. The structure and problems of Indiana State Government and the Federal Government were compared in government classes.

World history classes followed the development of cultures from ancient to modern times. Students also became familiar with the art, architecture, and music of the various historical periods. In U. S. history juniors learned of their American heritage by tracing the political and social advancement of the nation.

Students learn to communicate effectively

Journalism students scrutinized the complexities of the newspaper world. In the first semester textbooks were used to study the problems of newspapers. The class also served as reporters for the CRIMSON COMET, digging up classroom and club news from teachers. To Journalism II students fell the responsibility of publishing the COMET.

Public speaking classes helped students overcome their dread of speaking in front of groups. Students were able to conquer stage fright by learning its causes and ways of making the audience respond. They profited from their mistakes through the criticism of classmates. In addition to learning how to organize and deliver formal speeches, students had practice in classroom and panel discussions.

English classes studied great works of English literature: sophomores read Julius Caesar; juniors, Hamlet and Tale of Two Cities; and seniors, Macbeth. Preparing for college, seniors taking English VIII wrote term papers in the first half of the semester. The papers were written in conjunction with ecomonics and advanced social studies and were graded by both classroom teachers.

Language labs enhance language arts program

Mussed hairdos and earphones heralded the arrival of a new foreign language teaching technique—the use of language labs. Pioneering the use of advanced teaching methods in Elston, Spanish, French, and German students donned the curious headsets. The labs allowed them to hear themselves and to improve their accents as they spoke into the microphones. Teachers were able to listen to each student individually as the class practiced in unison.

The labs were used in the Modern Language Department in conjunction with the new teaching methods. French classes watched films and memorized the dialogue. German and Spanish classes listened to tapes and memorized sentences and their English meanings in the first year. Second and third year classes in all three languages studied grammar and worked to improve their conversational and reading abilities.

By translating the legends of ancient Rome and Caesar's commentaries on the Gallic Wars, Latin students gained a knowledge of the culture and life of the Romans. The concentration on grammar and construction in first year classes gave students a better understanding of the English language.

Sara Fenton concentrates as she practices in office machines.

Students train for future professions

A new course in electronics opened the Vocational Department to academic students. It gave the potential engineering student experience in technical drafting and general engineering. In wood shop boys learned how to use hand and power tools, plan projects, and refinish surfaces. Machine shop taught safe and efficient handling of simple and power machines. Power machine shop, more commonly known as auto shop, instructed boys in the working and maintenance of motors. Mechanical drawing, blue-printing, and welding were also offered.

Girls in the clerical course prepared to be office clerks and receptionists. The stenographic course trained girls to be secretaries. They acquired skills in typing, shorthand, and bookkeeping. In office machines students learned to use Dictaphones, comptometers, calculators, and electric typewriters. Experience was gained on the duplicator and mimeograph by running off material for teachers. Advanced students received first hand training through office and secretarial practice class and the work-experience program.

In Fashion Arts students studied dress styles through the ages, determined which colors were best for their complexions, and experimented in dress design. The Interior Decorating class traced the development of home decorating from ancient to modern times. Drawing floor plans brought an awareness of color schemes and furniture balance. Girls in Home Living furnished imaginary three room apartments, noting primarily the costs involved. Practical knowledge of child care and home nursing helped to better prepare the girls for their future role as housewives.

First semester sewing classes practiced fundamental skills by making skirts and blouses. The climax of the year came with the Spring Style Show when girls modeled outfits they had made. Pies, cakes, and Christmas cookies were favorites in Foods class. Aside from cooking and eating the products of their skill, classes learned the correct way to set a table and became accomplished hostesses.

Talents and hobbies received special emphasis in elective courses. Aspiring artists strived for reality in their sketches through perspective drawing. Harmony class studied music theories, note progression, and chord formation. Students also tried their hand at composing original music. In safety classes students concerned with maximum driving safety studied the rules of driving and automobile operation. Drivers' education served as a testing ground for driving practice and skills. Gym classes stress physical fitness

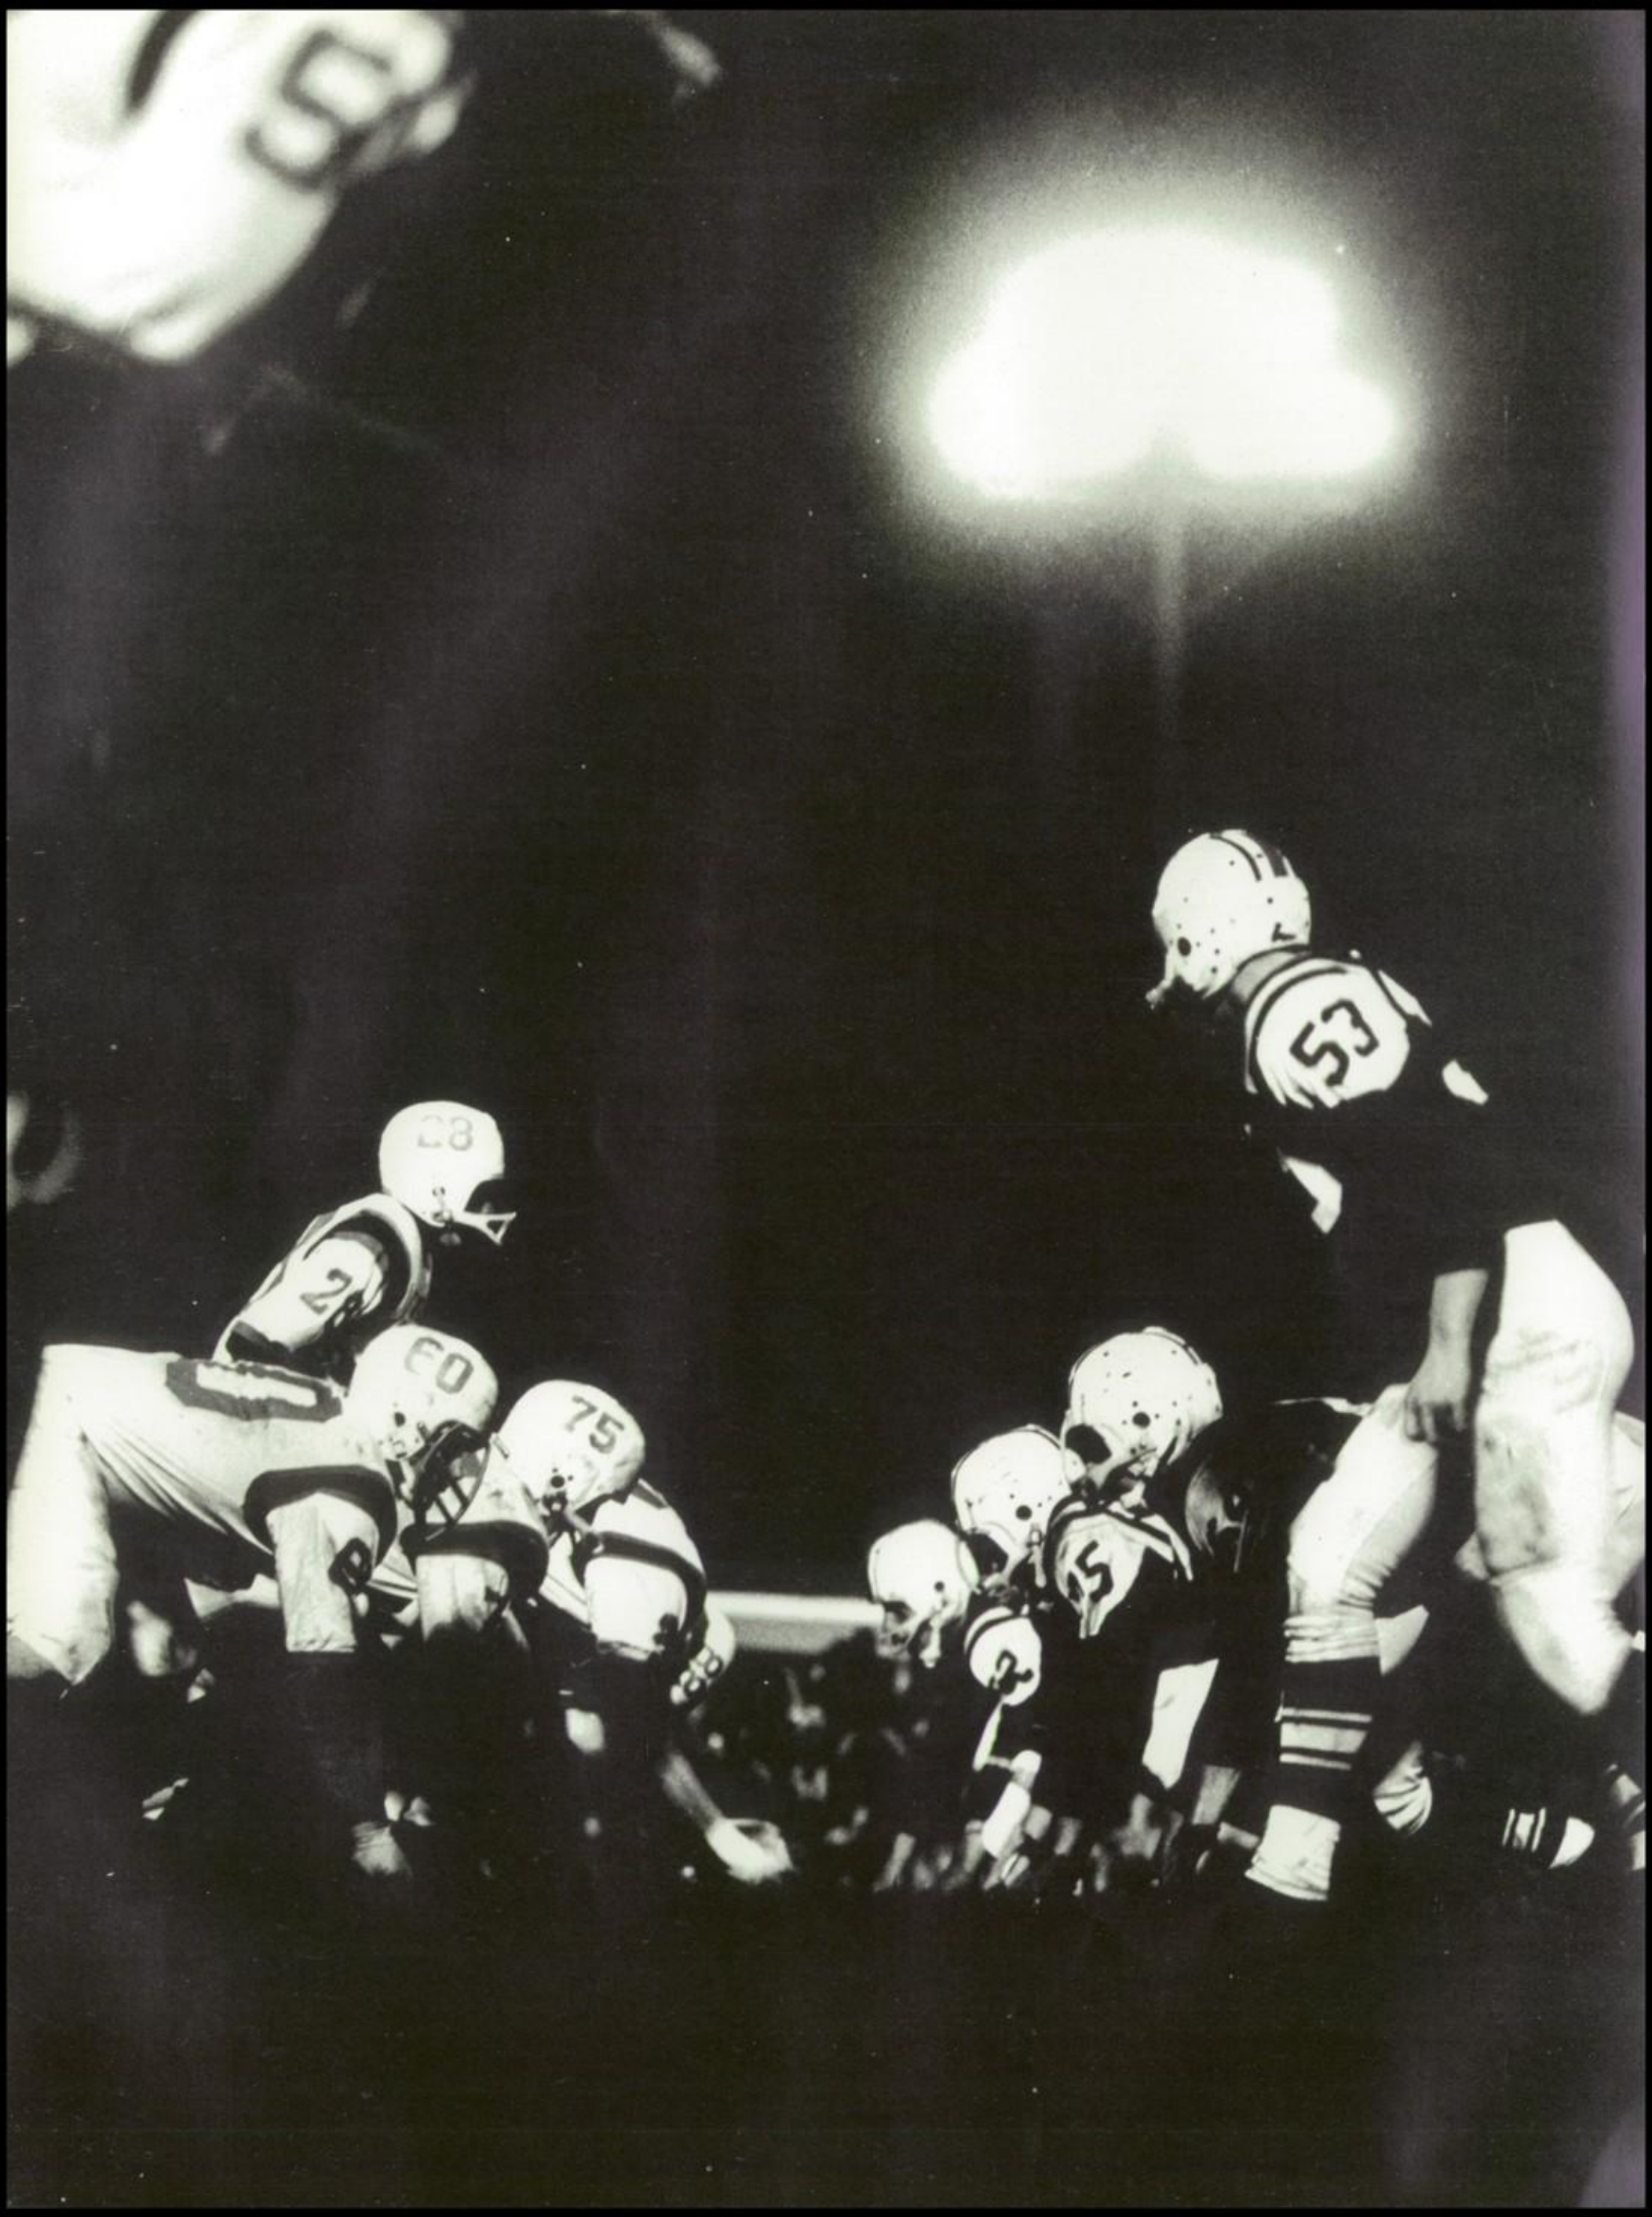
In Elston's gym classes focus was on physical fitness and athletic skill. Each class started with calisthenics and warm-ups. The remainder of the hour was spent developing sports skills. The many warm days of fall provided opportunities for outdoor sports. Gill Field was parceled out among the various classes. One corner served as a football field for the boys and another as a soccer field for the girls. As the year progressed, the boys went on to basketball, weight lifting, and other indoor sports. The girls' gym classes worked on everything from deck tennis to folk dancing.

Lifting weights for a grade are Keith Igelski, Jack Sutherlin, and Dan Heuck.



Behind each short athletic contest are many hours of arduous practice. Individuals work to discipline their bodies; teams drill to coordinate the individuals into harmonious units. The athlete is rewarded when a new record, a tourney victory, or an outstanding individual effort turns the focus on

Big Red has one of those years

In their opening game the Red Devils battled Gary Tolleston to a 7—7 tie until late in the fourth quarter when they recovered a blocked punt in Gary's end zone for a two point safety and a 9—7 victory.

Against South Bend Washington the score was knotted at the half, 6—6. The Devils exploded in the last half and scored three times on runs of 83 and 75 yards by Pat McBride and 20 yards by Bob Brown. The final score was 27—6.

The next five games ended in one touchdown losses and much frustration for the Red Devils. First South Bend Central and then Hobart handed City 14—7 and 13—6 defeats respectively.

In the homecoming game, Elkhart, then ranked fifth in the state, was held to a single touchdown by the Devil defense. However, they blanked the Red Devils offensively and won 6—0, spoiling Coach Overman's record of never losing a homecoming game.

In the fourth quarter of the South Bend Riley game, Riley recovered a blocked punt in the end zone to edge the Devils by a 7—0 score.

The last and most frustrating one touchdown loss of the season came against LaPorte. The Slicers scored twice in the last quarter to edge the Red Devils 19—13. The winning TD was scored with only ten seconds remaining in the game on a spectacular circus catch on City's goal line.

Although the Red Devils' record of 2—6—1 was a losing one, a season's achievements aren't always measured by the box score. The team entertained its fans with good, exciting football; and the juniors gained valuable experience.

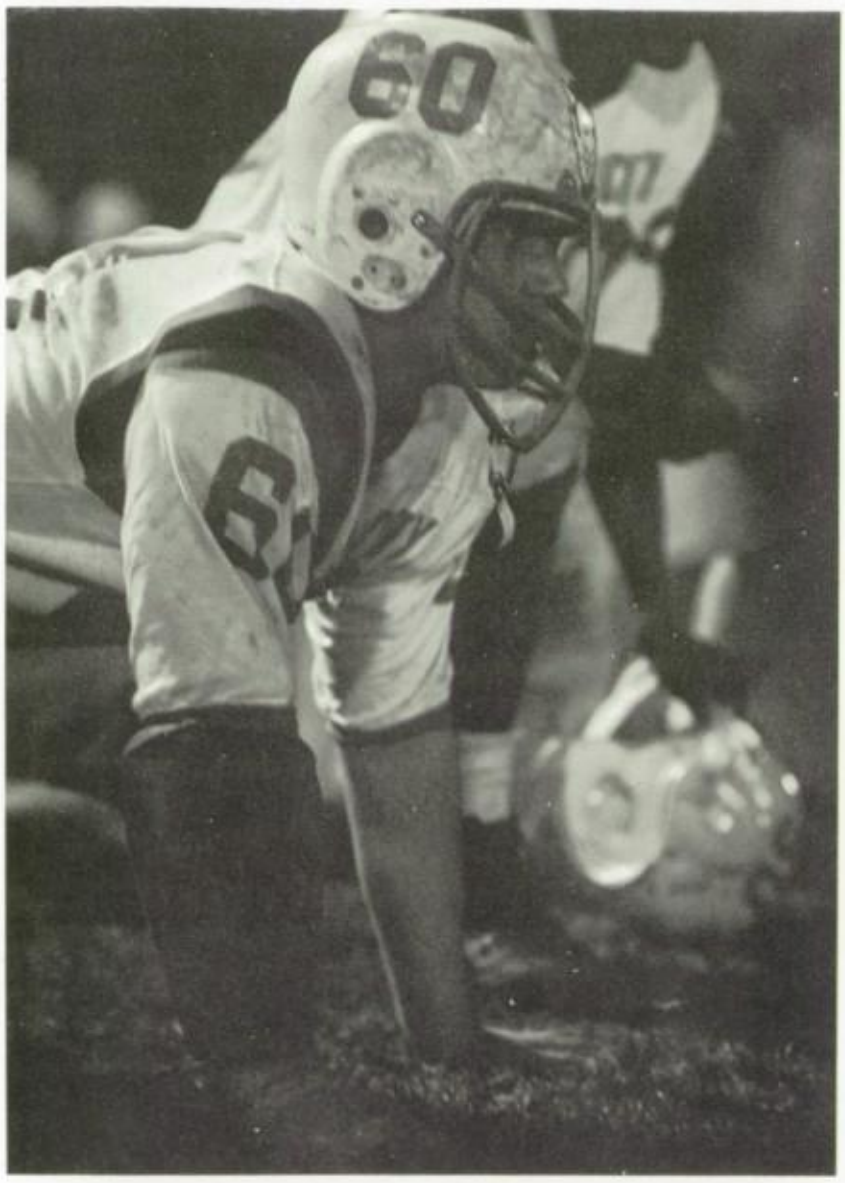
Gridders receive honors

Each year several organizations honor outstanding high school football players. This year six Red Devils received recognition for their efforts on the football field. The State Sportscasters and Sports Writers selected Doug Dunlop as All-State guard and Pat McBride All-State halfback. The Associated Press also chose Doug on their All-State team. Receiving All-Conference honors from the South Bend TRIBUNE were: Pat McBride, first team; Doug Dunlop, second team; Dan Lauer, honorable mention; and Vernon Payne, honorable mention.

The team chose Steve Henry and Dan Lauer as co-captains. Dan was also the team's choice as most valuable lineman, and Pat McBride was rated as the most valuable man in the backfield.

Statistically, Dunlop was the leading tackler, hauling down 50 by himself and receiving an additional 40 assists. Payne made 41 tackles and 39 assists. Lauer and Henry had 40 tackles apiece. McBride was the leading ground gainer, grinding out 726 yards. Junior Fred Keen picked up 255 yards.

The team takes time out to discuss strategy during the Elkhart game.



Impatient to join the action on the field, Dennis Nickel crouches on the sidelines.

In the regular season this year the Red Devil harriers defeated nine of the sixteen teams they faced. They finished third in a field of twenty-two teams in the LaPorte Invitational, and they placed second in a field of twenty-one teams in the Sectional Meet. In the Regional the boys finished seventh and failed to qualify for the State Meet.

Participating in the LaPorte Invitational, Steve Major ran the best time of his career, covering the two mile course in ten minutes and fourteen seconds.

The Red Devil five began another successful season by defeating Hammond Morton 87—51. In the team's second game Vernon Payne established a new Red Devil and school scoring record by pouring in 43 points to lead the Devils to a 95—76 win over Gary Froebel.

In their first conference game of the season, the Devils lost to South Bend Central on a shot from the ten second line just as the final gun went off. The Valparaiso game provided another thrilling finish with City pulling off an 80—73 overtime win. They outscored Valpo 19—2 in the final quarter and the overtime period.

The Vincennes Alices thwarted the Devils' hopes of winning a second straight championship at the East Chicago Holiday Tourney. Vincennes' 70—69 win also broke a four game winning streak for the Devils. City gained third place at the tourney by defeating Hammond Morton 87—51.

After falling 22 points behind Elkhart, the Red Devils fought back and nearly upended the Blue Blazers. Elkhart held out, however, and the Devils lost their third game by a 84—78 score.

City spoiled South Bend Washington's chances for the conference crown by defeating the Panthers 96—93. The following week the Devils nailed down second place in the conference by beating South Bend Riley 97—84, ending their season with a record of 19 wins and 4 defeats.

Red Devils take 13th sectional

At tournament time the Devils set out to achieve two goals—their thirteenth sectional championship in a row and their first regional championship in thirteen years. Advancing to the finals, the Devils defeated Mill Creek 98—58 and South Central 67—44. At half-time in the final game the La Porte Slicers held a 37—31 lead over the Devils. In the last quarter City gained a two point lead and won the tourney 76—74. Three Red Devils were selected from one hundred players for the all-sectional team. They were: John Selke, Vernon Payne, and Gene Simmons.

In the East Chicago Regional Tournament, the Red Devils defeated the Gary Froebel Blue Devils 106—87, setting them up to play Gary Tolleston for the Regional Championship. Tolleston jumped to a fifteen point lead in the opening minutes of play. City narrowed the score to 85—79 within the remaining few minutes of the game, but Tolleston finished the tournament 93—83.

Coach Doug Adams' Red Devils finished the season with a record of twenty wins and five defeats.

Golfers win Lake Hills Invitational

The 1963 Linksmen highlighted another winning year by defeating LaPorte twice, the only losses the Slicers suffered all season. In addition to winning twelve of twenty matches, the Devils won the Lake Hills Invitational, placed first in their sectional, and drove to seventh place in the state tournament.

The Red Devils championed the Lake Hill Invitational by beating out twenty-four other teams, including South Bend Riley, last year's defending state champions. Leading the Red Devil attack were Bob Peters and Harry Gasparret with 77's. Backing them up were Mark Winski with a 79 and Jim O'Conner with an 84.

In the 1963 sectional, the Red Devils were victorious over La Porte, last year's sectional winner. Triumphing over a field of twenty-six teams, the Red Devils defeated Valparaiso by thirteen strokes, 324 to 337, and LaPorte by fourteen, 324 to 338. Peter's 75 paced the team and qualified him for medalist honors.

Two weeks later the Red Devils competed in the state tourney and placed seventh.

The Michigan City cindermen placed sixth in both the Hammond Invitational and the Pre-Conference meets. In the Conference meet the team placed thirteenth with three boys achieving fourth place finishes—Steve Major in the mile run, John Selke in the broad jump, and Jim Henley in the pole vault. In the sectional meet the team placed fourth. The Red Devils had more first place winners than any other team in the meet: Selke in the high jump and the broad jump, Major in the mile run, and Henley in the pole vault. In winning the mile run, Major set a new school record of four minutes, thirty-six and eight tenths seconds, breaking Dick Hutmacher's 1958 record.

The 1963 Red Devil baseball team compiled a record of 11 wins and 9 losses, and two-thirds of those losses were by one or two runs.

Against Portage in the first game Dennis Cox hit a 375 foot homerun over the left field wall, a first by a high school player at Ames Field.

Dennis hit another four bagger against Hobart to lead the Devils in the homerun department. Tom Tiedeman scored twelve runs, hit three triples, and batted in a total of eleven runs. He led the team in all three fields, and for his efforts was selected Most Valuable Player. Terry Smith led the team in fielding with an average of .993, committing only one error in 150 chances. Cabot Holmes and Mickey Kazmucha were the leading winning pitchers, each winning four games. Al Jumche was the leading strike out pitcher with thirty-seven, and Dick Schauman gave up the fewest earned runs with an earned run average of only .600.

Terry Smith takes care of the first base side of a double play against Washington-Clay.

These are the people of Elston—over 2100 students, nearly 90 teachers and administrators, and a small force of maintenance men and dieticians converge upon the building each school day. Duties and interests and activities are diverse, but there is a unified interest in the school. The depth of this mutual interest of pupils and teachers and workers determines the success of the school; thus the focus is on

Senior year crowns school career

To Elston's seniors 1964 was the pinnacle of a three year climb in education and experience. It began with a new-felt togetherness sparked by the fun and laughter of the sophomore Mardi Gras party; it ended with a slow paced walk to a solemn song. The junior year brought tests of class unity, and with the support of sponsors Mrs. Durand and Mr. Lootens, the bonds held strong. Busy nights of concessions work were rewarded when a tired but excited class saw their Soiree dans Granada mature from paper, paint, and ideas to a memorable Prom night. Led by President Steve Major, Vice-president Kent Lange, and Secretary Kim Freier, the seniors plunged into their final year's activities—term papers, SAT's, college applications, senior fun. It ended with a diploma and a handshake in the big gym where for three years seniors had eaten lunch and attended dances and watched basketball games.

Senior Class sponsors: Mr. Lootens, Mrs. Durand.

Busy juniors work on concessions and the Prom

Led by their class officers—Fred Keen, president; Doug Gloff, vice-president; and Lynda Pontius, secretary, the juniors tackled their greatest responsibility—the Prom. From September through February concessions workers peddled soft drinks, popcorn, potato chips, and candy bars at football and basketball games. Much of the money earned from concessions was used to finance the decorations, entertainment, and refreshments for the Prom. Work on the big dance began in January when the steering committee and class sponsors, Miss Calvert and Mr. Cook, set up committees and considered Prom themes. The following months were filled with long hours of work and worry as the year's principal social event took shape.

For their play the Junior Class presented The Mousetrap, a murder mystery set in England. Convincing actors succeeded in creating suspense and terror for the audience.

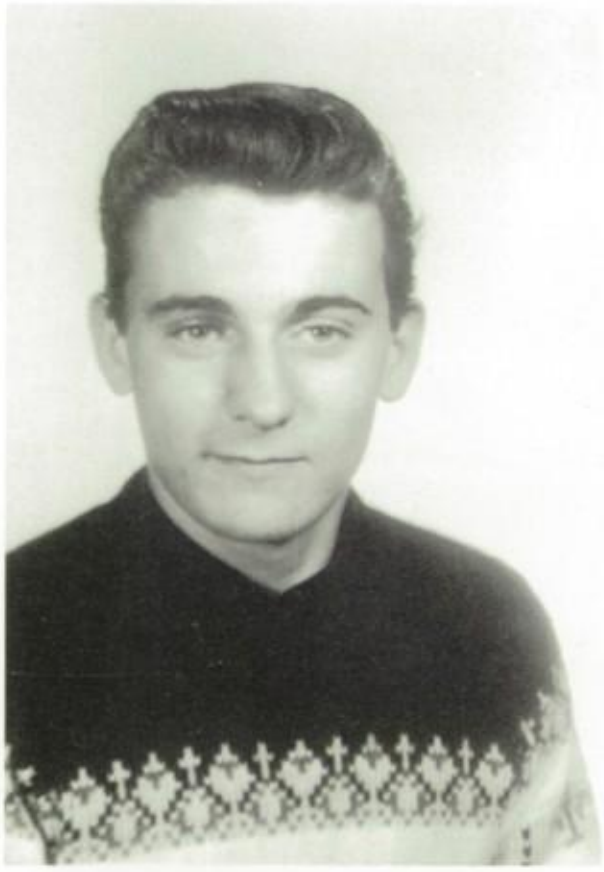
In Memoriam



Robert Beck

Our classmates for just a short while.

"Death broke at once the vital chain and freed his soul the nearest way."

Samuel Johnson

Allen Blank

Sophomores begin high school life

With an eager step into the halls, sophomores got their first taste of senior high life at Elston. The excitement calmed and enthusiasm was channeled into late hours of study, happier hours of club activities, and strenuous hours of athletics.

Choosing officers was the initial duty of the new class. Robert Hampton was elected president, John Holmes vice-president, and Cheri Wilkins secretary. Sophomore sponsors, Mr. Bass and Mrs. Urquhart, served as chief organizers of the class Hawaiian Luau party. Hula boys, swaying to the music of ukuleles and bongo drums, gaily marked the beginning of a busy three year stay for 760 new sophomores.

Close ties exist between Elston's student body and Michigan City's business community. With allowances and earnings from parttime jobs, teenagers buy a prodigious amount of food, clothing, and entertainment. Local business men aid students by providing employment and supporting school activities such as the COMET and the ELSTONIAN. High school students and professional men are important to one another; for both the focus is often on

AN ELSTONIAN YEAR

The 1964 ELSTONIAN began in April of 1963 when eleven of us—unsure and inexperienced juniors—first met as a staff in S113. We discussed theme, learned a few basic mechanics, and tried to capture the feeling we wanted for our book. Last September work began in earnest. Four who had spent two weeks at the I.U. Journalism Institute taught the others how to crop pictures, plan intelligent layouts, fit copy, and sell ads. Suddenly eleven individuals became one staff, and the 1964 ELSTONIAN was on its way. A few frantic months of taking pictures, struggling with layouts, polishing copy, meeting deadlines—and then we were finished. We have tried to capture the feeling of this year and the spirit of this class and to produce a book which will be enjoyed now and in years to come.

Our thanks go to everyone who helped—to Elston's students, teachers, and administrators; to our advertisers; to Root Studio; to the American Yearbook Company; to Smith Cover Company; and to Mr. Irving Lloyd, whose pictures appear throughout the book. Finally, thanks to Mrs. Nightingale, who helped us through the stupid layouts, bad copy, and last minute rush at deadline time.

Mr. George McIntire

IN MEMORIAM

Mr. McIntire gave outstanding service to his profession, to his church, to his community and to friends. In the educator's profession, he advanced in his chosen field of specialization to a position of leadership recognized throughout the Midwest. A deeply religious man, he served his church in many important posts of responsibility throughout his life. Every one who knew Mr. McIntire well knows that he was a devoted husband and a loving and providing father. No man could be a better example to the young people of Michigan City.

My Dearest Janet,

This is it for me. There is no more left for me. I am out. (soon) I miss the ol' place already. I already miss walking you to your classes and carrying your books for you. I hope no one will take my place. Will they? You are the sweetest woman I know and I love you very dear. How are you going to get to school in the mornings and then home again at night? Maybe I can still hold my place "first in line" if I don't have to be to work right away. huh?

We have had plenty of laughs in these old halls, rooms, and study hall especially. You are ~~to~~ so sweet and wonderfully nice that I just get fun from watching you laugh and more fun in making you laugh. Ummmmmmmmmh-- I love my future wife -- I'll work hard this next year to get us started ~~and~~ on our feet towards our marriage. I'll expect a good report card every grading period - OK? OK!

I can't wait until this time next year - Can you?
You'll look lavishly beautiful in your new bathing suit you are getting with your features - Beautiful face - smooth - sweet pretty - and kind - and your ~~w~~ WOW figure

Your future Husband

NOW READ IT

Be sure you write enough in my book after all if you didn't something would be wrong, someone will think that you are my boy-friend. Oh I will? See ya soon.
I almost forgot the football & basketball Games.
